ALERT TO CLERGY:

Request for funds is bogus

Please note the following letter which was sent to Bishop Bartlett from the Archdeacon of the Missionary Diocese of Honduras:

Dear Bishop Bartlett:

Bishop Frade has asked me to write you concerning a man by the name of James Sheppard, sometimes styling himself as Jaime Pastor, who has been writing Episcopalians and Episcopal churches asking for support for himself and for orphanages in Honduras. His letterhead, Missions for Christ, has an Episcopal shield and talks about "Episcopal outreach." Mr. Sheppard is not a missionary of the Episcopal Church, and neither he nor his purported orphanages, including the Caribbean Christian Orphanage, have any connection with the Episcopal Diocese of Honduras.... Therefore, we recommend that anyone wishing to support the Diocese of Honduras and its projects send NO funds to Mr. Sheppard or Missions for Christ.

The Venerable John H. Park, Archdeacon

Campus directories are a source for church ads

A note from the Rev. Mimi Greenwood, coordinator of ministry in higher education, to congregations seeking to reach college students: many colleges and universities publish a campus telephone directory. Consider adding your church name, location, staff, telephone number and services to this publication, as the students are each given a copy and can easily find your church. The directory is generally produced by the institution itself or as a fundraising effort for the school. One advertising organization currently working in the area is the "Campus Telephone Directory" which may charge a church for an ad; but circulation within the campus makes it very inexpensive per copy and gives it much great distribution than an ad in a local paper.

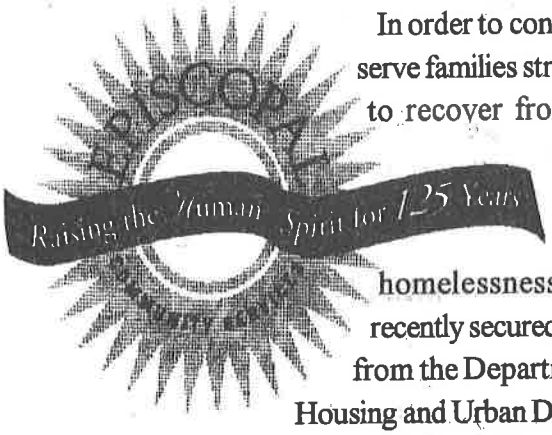
ECS News

Thirty-one formerly homeless women recovering from substance abuse were recently honored by the National Institute of Drug Abuse (NIDA) Aftercare Project at a final graduation at Temple University. With the help of the program, the women entered education or vocational programs, obtained employment and secured independent housing for themselves and their children. The Aftercare Project was a five-year collaboration between Philadelphia Health Management Consortium and Episcopal Community Services.



In order to continue to serve families struggling to recover from substance abuse and homelessness, ECS recently secured a grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to fund project SAFE (Supportive Assistance for Family Empowerment) which is modeled on the NIDA project. Spring Update

Spring, despite its beauty, brings with it frightful excesses. Rivers flood, tornadoes touch down, flash floods and wind storms uproot people from their homes, and a whole lifetime's work vanishes in the dust or in the mud.

In just the last two months, April and May, we have seen floods, tornadoes, flash floods and heavy rains in Alabama, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, North Carolina, Mississippi, West Virginia, Louisiana; in Texas and southern Oklahoma; Ohio and South Dakota; also in California and Illinois. Bad storms due to heavy rains have deluged parts of Argentina, Sri Lanka, and Bangladesh. The Fund is monitoring all these disasters and has already sent help to Illinois.

Disasters that are much more pervasive and deadly, caused by what we euphemistically call "civil unrest," affect Burundi and Thailand. They continue in Rwanda and trouble all observers as the ebola virus cuts its terrible swath in Zaire. The Fund has already sent an emergency grant to Thailand for the Karen refugees.

All these are places that need our help. In order for us to continue responding to the multiplying disasters of this spring we need to count on your never-failing generosity. Please designate your checks "for disasters" and send to:

Nominations deadline near

The deadline for nominations for offices to be elected at the November Diocesan Convention is October 4. In addition to the offices previously publicized, Convention will elect nine lay triers to join the clergy triers already in office. Triers serve as the jury in the trial of a clergy person; the election of lay members is being done to bring diocesan practice in accord with new national church canons on clergy discipline. Bios of most diocesan candidates for Standing Committee; Clergy Salaries & Pensions; Church Foundation Board; and General Convention Deputy are included in the October Pennsylvania Episcopalian. A slate of lay triers being prepared by the Nominating Committee will be publicized in the November issue of the newspaper.

See page 4 for info on the Convention Reception.
